Our clothing, 'Perfection' clothing is different.

Wears better because made better. Built to stand the racket; double seats and knees; twice the usual padding; all strain points stayed; buttons on to stay.

Wise mothers all prefer 'Perfection' — how about you?

VIEWED BRIDGE SITES

COUNTY COURT ON TOUR OF INVESTIGATION.

Looked At The Lang And Brown Fords On Coon Creek East Of The City.

Judges Dightman, and Dixon came up on the morning train yesterday and were met here by Judge Hubbard and the 3 Judges went out to the proposed bridge sites on Coon Creek at Lang and Brown fords two and three miles respectively northwest of this city, with the object of having a bridge built at one of these places.

It will be remembered that the court pronounced a forego in this locality over a year ago, but were unable to fulfill their promise on account of lack of funds. They declare now, however, that they will build the bridge this fall without fail.

They viewed both sites but came to no decision as to which site would be selected. This will be decided in the near future after which the work of building will be pushed as fast as possible.

The court was entertained at dinner by Judge Hubbard at his home near the Zion Church, and as Mr Hubbard took two large watermelons out with him it was supposed that they had a royal feast but on their return to town Judge declared that the watermelons were green consequently their feast was a failure in the watermelon line.

No Silver Dollars

Howard Matthews, who is home from New York on a visit was a pleasant caller at this office last Saturday. Mr. Matthews has many interesting things to tell about the east, one of which is that there is practically no silver dollars in circulation in the locality in which he lives. Mr. Matthews hadn't seen one for months until he came back west. Paper money circulates almost entirely.

A TOAD BY MAIL.

A Horned Variety Sent From Western Kansas

When Postmaster Wade opened the morning mail pouch last Sunday morning out jumped a toad. Mr. Wade first thought that some of the clerks played a trick on him, but later found a broken box among the mail which indicated that the toad had been sent in it but had gotten out.

It was directed to Miss Leo Daffer and proved to be of the horned variety which is quite a curiosity in this locality. It came from Miss Daffer's brother out in Western Kansas. His toadship was placed in its box and delivered to Miss Daffer.

It only cost two cents to send it from Western Kansas to Jasper.

MARRIED AN INDIAN

ROMANCE OF A FORMER JASPER GIRL.

Miss May Glase Becomes The Wife of a Full Blood Apache.

Miss May Glase, a well known former Jasper girl, was married recently to a full blooded Apache Indian. The marriage took place at Los Angeles, Cal., and the Indian was a pupil of Miss Glase's at the government Indian school at Phoenix, Arizona. The Los Angeles Examiner of July 19, prints a good likeness of Miss Glase and her husband in company with the following dispatch from Phoenix:

The recent marriage in Los Angeles of May Glase, a teacher at the Phoenix Indian School to Alfred Scott a full blooded Indian, is causing much talk in this city. Friends of the young woman are at a loss to understand her actions, but they forget that little Cupid is all powerful in matters of the affections.

Miss Glase is in the neighborhood of 33 years of age, while Alfred Scott is about ten years her junior. She is attractive in manner and is full of grace. Being of an educational turn of mind, she obtained a splendid schooling, and then followed the profession of teaching. In this capacity, she was employed at the Phoenix Indian School for a number of years and has devoted her time to the training of the young Indians.

Among the many red skin lads to enter this institution of learning provided by the Federal government was Alfred Scott, a native of Southern California. He is brighter than the average young man of his race and made excellent progress at the school. By trade, he became a blacksmith and worked industriously with the hammer and anvil.

Miss Glase took particular interest in Scott because he was so apt in his lessons and gave great attention to his studies. The two gradually became more and more closely associated, the Indian studying in his teacher's home much of the time. Close application to duties broke down the youth physically, and he entered a long sickness during which Miss Glase was always near his bedside, attending to his every want. Her devoted nursing finally restored Scott, but not sufficiently to allow him to graduate in 1904 as he otherwise would have done.

Last summer, the relations existing between the two were so noticeable that considerable adverse criticism was passed upon the young woman, but the matter finally passed over. A little later Scott went to Southern California to visit his relatives, and Miss Glase soon followed, spending some time on the reservation with the parents of her pupils. When the Indian went to Los Angeles this summer friends of Miss Glase thought that "finis" had been written to the affair, but she was not long separated from her love.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott will return to this city and, as Mrs. Scott has resigned her position with the Indian school, they will settle down on the McDowell reservation to dwell with the Apache Indians. Mrs. Scott will teach school there.
